

Warehousing careers

Make your mark on the modern supply chain

Entry level roles in the warehousing sector offer excellent training and experience, leading to a variety of interesting career paths. There are great opportunities to grow and to influence supply chain efficiency and sustainability.

Entry level, graduate and professional roles are in high demand

Roles include: administration coordinator, business analyst, commercial manager, facilities and maintenance manager, forklift operator, front-of-house security, human resources, information technology, injury and wellbeing lead, inventory officer, operations manager, picker and packer, project manager, receipt checker, receptionist, safety lead, supply chain manager, systems and inventory manager, team leader, training partner, transport manager, workforce planning specialist, workplace coach.

The warehousing sector is using creativity and technology every day and offers excellent opportunities for secure, well-paid employment.

Explore transport and logistics careers

Visit tmr.qld.gov.au/T-and-L-Careers to explore careers in transport and logistics.

Figure 1: A young woman and a young man are standing next to warehouse shelves looking for products.